to Marshal of the Soviet Union

Cde. R. Ya. Malinovskiy

I report:

As of 29 September the following main units and formations have arrived in Cuba:

- missile troops – subunits of two R-12 missile regiments (10 launchers and 19 missiles);
- air defense troops – the 10th and 11th Air Defense Divisions comprising six S-75 SAM regiments (24 battalions and 576 missiles);
- air forces – an FKR-1 regiment (10 launchers and 20 missiles), a fighter regiment (47 aircraft), a helicopter regiment (28 helicopters), and a composite squadron (11 aircraft);
- naval forces – a brigade of missile boats (12 boats and 28 missiles), a “Sopka” coastal missile regiment (8 launchers and 34 missiles);
- ground forces – four motorized rifle regiments (141 tanks and self-propelled artillery pieces, 102 [field] guns and mortars, 27 anti-tank guided missiles). One tank battalion of the 314th OMSP is en route.

A total of 30,938 men have arrived.

Of the troops which have arrived the 17th “Sopka” Missile Regiment and the 302nd, 400th, and 496th OMSP have been brought into readiness to perform combat missions; the 11th Air Defense Division in full strength and one SAM regiment of the 10th Air Defense Division, the 32nd Fighter Regiment, and the 41st Brigade of Missile Boats are completing preparations for combat duty beginning 1 October; beginning 10 October two SAM regiments of the 10th Air Defense Division [will be ready for combat duty].

We think it possible and necessary to send a small group of generals and officers to Cuba with the object of inspecting the deployment and the readiness preparations of the air defense troops and aircraft, and checking whether the [SAM] missilemen are preparing the data and [launch] positions correctly.

The composition of the group [would be] 8 men – the senior to be General-Colonel of Aviation Cde. N. G. Seleznev.

The date of departure would be on 7 October on a scheduled Tu-114 [commercial] aircraft.

Please approve [this].

General-Colonel
